

Thank you for entrusting us with your care.

Now that you've been tested for COVID-19, we hope you know that Lee Health is dedicated to providing the best possible care if you develop symptoms. If your test comes back positive, please follow the guidelines for care and quarantine. We'll be here for you every step of the way.

We Need Your Help: Blood Donation

Our experts are also working hard on introducing various treatments and, eventually, a vaccine. When you are feeling better and have recovered from COVID-19, you will have the opportunity to donate blood for other Southwest Florida patients who are fighting the virus.

How Does Giving Blood Help?

There is no known safe and effective treatment for COVID-19, but researchers believe that plasma from recovered patients contains antibodies that may help others overcome this deadly disease.

To Donate

When you are feeling stronger and want to volunteer to donate, we invite you to call 239-343-2332 or email covid.plasma@leehealth.org.

All donated blood stays right here in Southwest Florida.

Here's what you need to know to be a hero and help COVID-19 patients.

You can donate blood if you have fully recovered from COVID-19.

Clinical personnel will screen potential donors with questions and a nasal swab test to ensure they are free of COVID-19.

Lee Health will provide donors with necessary forms that are required for routine blood donation consent.

If potential donors are appropriate, an appointment for blood donation is scheduled at a Lee Health donation site.

To donate, call 239-343-2332 or email covid.plasma@leehealth.org

Lee Health and the Mayo Clinic thank you for standing tall and working together. Remember, your generous donation stays right here in Southwest Florida.
